Law firm's Chrysler move

Sahn Ward Coschignano & Baker, PLLC has announced that the law firm is expanding with the opening of a New York City office inside the Chrysler Building at 405 Lexington Avenue.

The company said the new office will enable the firm to better service those clients in the Metropolitan area, especially as both the firm's New York City land use and zoning, and litigation practices continue to grow. Partner Dan Braff is leading the development of the firm's New York City land use and zoning practice.

Braff also provides zoning analyses and counsels clients in connection with air rights transfers throughout the five boroughs.

"We are excited to open our New York City office and continue to develop our New York City land use and zoning practice," said Michael H. Sahn, managing partner, Sahn Ward Coschignano & Baker, PLLC.
